What is "LEARN"?

At the University of Tokyo Research Center for Advanced Science and Technology, we have been conducting practical research to solve ongoing educational issues.

While the social system and the tools and devices used to survive the system are getting more and more complicated, our knowledge has lost its reality, as well as the children's. Under the safe and controlled environment, children are losing resilience while those who do not fit the description are excluded from the group with no other place to go. Society is molding them into "social norms" for more efficiency.

What is "LEARN Global"?

"LEARN Global" is a program for children whose native language is not Japanese.

The wonders and curiosities of everyday life can be a great opportunity to learn and experience the world. "LEARN Global" offers an experiential curriculum that allows students to seek answers to such mysteries using mobile technologies, and through interaction with others. This is the very first event for "LEARN Global". It is intended for children from 10 to 15 years old, not yet fully accustomed to Japanese lifestyles and/or haven't mastered Japanese language. Participation is free, lunch provided. Participants are responsible for your own transportation costs to and from the meeting location.
